

Expression of Interest (EOI) for Website Redesign, Development, and Maintenance Services.

Digo Bikas Institute invites qualified web development firms, creative agencies, or independent technical consultants to submit proposals for the professional architectural redesign, front-end optimization, and development of its official website (www.digobikas.org). The assignment involves executing a mobile-first UI/UX overhaul, constructing an advanced digital repository for research and policy materials, integrating distinct portals for programmatic pillars, and implementing eco-conscious, lightweight engineering practices.

Organization: Digo Bikas Institute (DBI)

Location: Mid Baneshwor, Kathmandu, Nepal

Notice Publication Date: June 19, 2026

Submission Deadline: June 22, 2026 (Before 5:00 PM NST)

Background

Digo Bikas Institute (DBI) is a prominent research and advocacy organization committed to promoting ecological sustainability and social equity at both policy and community levels in Nepal. Guided by the values of equity, fairness, justice, transparency, and inclusiveness, DBI undertakes rigorous research and action to advance alternative, local solutions to global environmental and socioeconomic challenges.

Our core programmatic focus areas include:

1. Rethinking Development: Promoting economic justice and practical activities that champion ecological sustainability.
2. Climate Justice: Facilitating systemic transformation, policy analysis, and community-frontline networking.
3. Sustainability Watch: Tracking the enforcement of environmental regulations and federal governance frameworks.
4. Sustainability Education: Building a critical mass of informed citizens through targeted awareness, camps, and summer schools.

As our publication archives, community toolkits, and interactive campaigns grow, DBI requires a modern, secure, highly performant, and intuitive web presence that serves as a premier knowledge hub for policymakers, civil society organizations (CSOs), youth groups, and international climate justice partners.

2. Objectives & Scope of Work

DBI is inviting Expressions of Interest (EOI) from qualified web development firms, creative agencies, or independent technical consultants to undertake the complete architectural redesign, front-end optimization, and development of the official website (www.digobikas.org).

The selected partner will be expected to deliver:

- Comprehensive UI/UX Redesign: A mobile-first, highly accessible user experience optimized for varying bandwidth constraints across different provinces of Nepal.
- Advanced Repository Infrastructure: A seamless, robust digital archive to host, categorize, and search specialized research papers, policy briefs, and vulnerability tools (e.g., studies on high-mountain GLOF events, fossil fuel transitions, and food rights-based toolkits).
- Dynamic Program Integration: Structured, distinct portals for DBI's four programmatic pillars and dedicated spaces for public mobilizations like the People's Climate March and Climate Justice Summer School.
- Eco-Conscious Web Engineering: Lightweight code frameworks and asset optimization to minimize page weights and the site's overall digital carbon footprint ("Green Web Design").
- Content Migration & Training: Secure migration of all historical news, features, and logs from the current legacy database, followed by comprehensive CMS orientation for administrative staff.

3. How to Apply

Interested parties (companies or individuals) are requested to submit their application package containing:

1. Registration Certificate
2. VAT Registration Certificate
3. Tax Clearance Certificate
4. Company Profile (Work sample reference)
5. Brief proposed methodology, work plan, and timeline
6. Financial quotation (Lump sum, inclusive of all applicable costs)

7. Contact details

4. Timeline & Duration

- Will be discussed during the contract signing.
- Deadline for Submission: June 22, 2026.

Electronic submissions should be sent in PDF format via email with the subject line "EOI: DBI Website Design Services - [Your Entity Name]" to: (hr@digobikas.org)
